PRACTICAL NURSING PROGRAM ACCREDITATION

High quality nursing education is critical to the retention of new graduates in an increasingly complex healthcare system.

To produce high quality graduates, a practical nursing¹ (PN) program needs to attract best-in-class students, adequate public support for seats, programs, and educators, and to be prepared to deliver cutting edge education that meets the highest achievable standards.

¹Practical nursing programs refer to the entry-to-practice programs for licensed practical nurses and registered practical nurses.

Want best-in-class? Join the best in the country

Canadian Association of Schools of Nursing (CASN) Accreditation helps PN programs achieve a new level of quality and status that drives both enrollment from high-quality applicants and increased public confidence and support.

Join CASN's nationally accredited programs. Joining this exclusive class elevates PN program quality to meet national nursing education standards.

“Attaining CASN Accreditation status has brought the University College of the North and the Diploma of Practical Nursing Program to a new level of recognition in the province as well as nationally. It was very rewarding to receive this level of acknowledgment!”

- Sheri Lyn McPhee RN MN NP, Associate Dean Diploma of Practical Nursing
University College of the North (UCN)

More than approval

While the approval process administered by regulatory bodies focuses on patient safety and provincial competencies, CASN Accreditation offers a multi-stage process that involves rigorous assessment against national standards of academic excellence.

CASN accredited schools benefit from an evolving national program, based on over 30 years of experience, that ensures nursing education programs are thoughtfully designed, relevant to the current needs of Canadians, innovative, and promote equity, diversity, and inclusion in health care.

Eminence through excellence

As a voluntary but challenging process that reveals strengths in your program and more importantly, areas to focus on, CASN's Accreditation seal means your program meets high academic standards and your school is engaged in a process of continuous quality improvement.

Accreditation tells nursing students and the public that a program has undergone a rigorous self-evaluation and an independent, objective peer appraisal of the overall educational quality.

Accreditation lets the world know that an institution meets or exceeds quality standards and is accredited by a recognized national agency like CASN.

“Receiving CASN Accreditation is a testament to how good our program is at VCC and demonstrates to other programs, colleges, and potential students that we have an excellent Practical Nursing Program.”

- Janita Schappert, RN, BSN, MSN, Dept. Head, Practical Nursing Program,
Vancouver Community College (VCC)

- Janita Schappert, VCC

Do you have a PN Program?

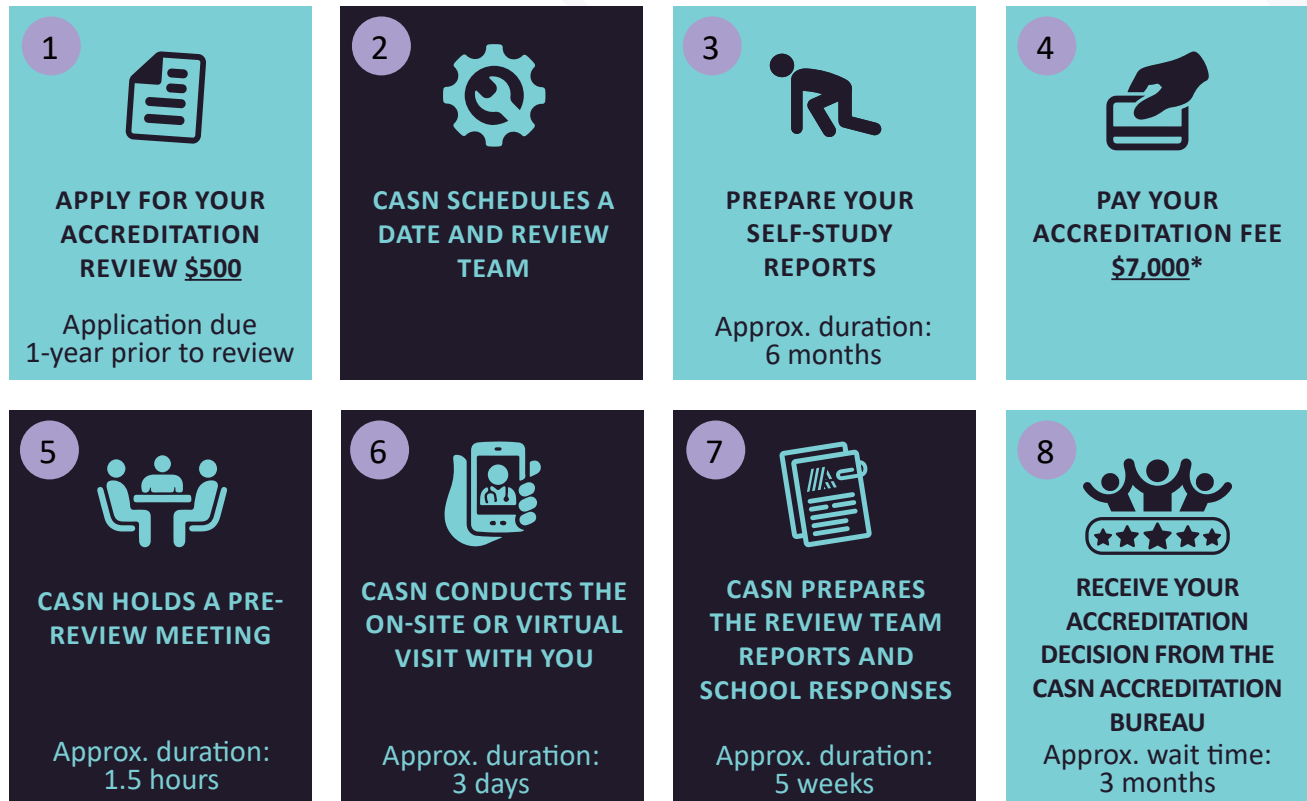

CASN defines an “Practical Nursing Program” as a diploma educational program that prepares students for the role as licensed practical nurses or registered practical nurses as both terms exist in Canada.

We would be delighted to help you determine if CASN PN Program Accreditation is right for you.

How does the PN Program work?

CASN PN Program Accreditation takes approximately two (2) years to complete, and uses a rigorous, bilingual, peer-reviewed assessment process that follows these steps:

* Pricing for member schools. All prices are in $CAD. Pricing is subject to change. Based on one education program conducted by one educational unit in a virtual format. Non-member schools pay an additional accreditation support fee. Discounts offered for concurrent accreditations of additional programs e.g., BScN, PN, NP. Contact us for more information.

PN-CASN Accreditation Bureau

The PN-CASN Accreditation Bureau (PN-CAB) is an independent decision-making body for CASN's accreditation reviews. It is composed of experienced faculty, a student, a public representative, a nursing employer, and a member of a nursing regulatory body. For more information on our accreditation program, please contact Joni Boyd.

Quality Standards

The CASN Accreditation Program for PN Programs is guided by core values and fundamental principles centered around fostering continuous quality improvement and providing quality assurance. Its standards apply to new and existing programs. Check out the complete Accreditation Standards for PN Programs on our website: accred.casn.ca. The standards represent the quality expectations for PN Programs and are stated broadly. The PN Accreditation Program has six standards.

1. Leadership, Governance, and Administration
2. Resources and Environment
3. Teaching and Learning
4. Program Framework and Curriculum
5. Program Outcomes
6. Program Quality Improvement

Quality Dimensions

Four overarching quality dimensions guided the development of the PN Accreditation Program standards and are infused throughout program:

1. Relevance: The structure, processes, and constituents of the educational unit and the education program under review are pertinent, appropriate, and responsive to the current and emerging needs of society and the profession.
2. Accountability: The educational unit takes responsibility for the quality of its programs and is answerable in all its relationships. The education program prepares students to be life-long learners who take responsibility for a professional practice that is safe, competent, ethical, and legal.
3. Relatedness: There is an alignment and inter-connectedness of all components of the educational unit and education program that promotes the achievement of goals and specified outcomes.
4. Uniqueness: While the structure, processes, and constituents of an educational unit and education program are expected to meet standards, how these expectations are met may be of a distinctive or unique character that allows for innovation as well as responsiveness to a particular context.

CASN PN Accreditation Program Background

The Canadian Association of Schools of Nursing is the national accrediting body for nursing education in Canada. In 1987, the organization accredited its first undergraduate program and since then the accreditation of nursing education programs in Canada has become a core function of CASN; it reviews over a dozen schools every year.

Accreditation promotes excellence and is recognized worldwide as an important, objective method to assess professional education programs. It identifies strengths and opportunities for improvement that can guide decision making. The process provides administrators and faculty with information regarding areas that require development, modification and/or resources.

The program of accreditation sets forth overarching quality dimensions, standards, descriptors, and key elements against which internationally educated nurse bridging program are assessed while also incorporating flexibility regarding the organizational structure and curriculum. This flexibility enables programs to be autonomous in their academic perspectives and responsive to their regional, social, professional, and institutional contexts.

The CASN Accreditation Program is built on the original philosophy and approach of previous programs. It undergoes regular review and enhancement. This is consistent with a constant quality improvement approach. Recent changes to the accreditation program accommodate evolution of distance education, collaborative partnerships, virtual reviews, and new program models within a new framework and with expanded standards. The following table identifies some of CASN Accreditation's milestone dates.

“ I liked that CASN Accreditation allowed us to have a more comprehensive picture of what our program is doing. It shows that we are meeting national standards, and that we provide a well-rounded program that is suited to the needs of our students from a national perspective. It also adds a measure of interest and credential to our program.”

- Sheri Lyn McPhee, UCN

Key PN Accreditation Program Milestones

1987

CASN institutes a national, voluntary accreditation process for baccalaureate nursing programs, supported by all members.

1994

CASN becomes a co-founder of the Association of Accrediting Agencies of Canada, a national association representing accrediting bodies of over 20 professions and other accrediting organizations.
